Reminger Co., LPA Launches eDiscovery Practice Group

Cleveland, OH – Reminger Co., LPA is pleased to announce the creation of a new practice group devoted to assisting businesses and law firms with electronic document issues.

The prevalence of electronically stored information (ESI) has led to eDiscovery being a fact of life in most litigation matters. Reminger's new practice group is comprised of seasoned litigators who understand the legal and strategic issues related to eDiscovery. Our attorneys understand the changing legal standards and guide clients through every phase of electronic discovery, including the identification, preservation, collection, processing, review, analysis and production of electronic data and documents.

Our experienced team of attorneys works closely with a wide array of experts, consultants and vendors who handle computer forensics, data processing, review hosting, and litigation support. This collaborative approach allows our attorneys to offer clients not only legal and strategic expertise but technical expertise that helps facilitate the most efficient and cost-effective approach to discovery management.

"eDiscovery requests have become increasingly prevalent in business litigation because of recent case law, changes in the rules of civil procedure and the dramatic increase in the amount of electronically maintained business documents," said Reminger Managing Partner Stephen E. Walters. "This new practice group is designed to assist our clients with any electronic document issues in both state and federal court proceedings."
