Three Reminger Attorneys Elected to Ohio Women's Bar Association Board for 2010-2011 Term

COLUMBUS, OH - Three Reminger attorneys - Angela M. Courtwright, Lisa House and Carrie Masters - were elected to serve on the Ohio Women's Bar Association (OWBA) board for the 2010-2011 term. They were named during the OWBA's annual meeting, held in May 2010 at the Athenaeum in Columbus.

The Ohio Women's Bar Association was formed in 1991 to build a community of lawyers interested in the issues that uniquely affect women.

Courtwright was elected OWBA Vice President. She most recently served as Treasurer for the OWBA during the 2009-2010 term before taking on the Vice President role. Courtwright is engaged in a litigation practice which includes all facets of employment and labor law, commercial litigation and development, as well as general and professional liability.

House will serve as Immediate Past President, an active role with the OWBA. She held the position of President during the previous term. House concentrates her legal practice in the areas of medical negligence, commercial premises, general casualty insurance, nursing home and extended care liability, and professional liability.

Masters was elected At-Large Trustee for the coming year. This is her first year serving on the OWBA board. She focuses her legal practice in the areas of general liability, premises liability and professional liability.

"We are all looking forward to working with the OWBA, which provides so many substantive networking and leadership opportunities for women in the legal community," said Courtwright.

Managing Partner Stephen E. Walters added, "We are fortunate have these dynamic attorneys on our team who are able to contribute their time and talent to such a vital organization."
