COLUMBUS, OH –We are pleased to announce that Adriann S. McGee has been named to the Board of Directors for the Ohio Coalition for Adult Protection Services (OCAPS). The purpose of OCAPS is to enhance the quality and provision of services for the prevention, identification and treatment of adult abuse, neglect and exploitation through education, training, advocacy, collaboration and networking.

Adriann practices in Reminger’s Columbus office, where she focuses her legal practice in the area of probate, trusts, and estates litigation, along with guardianship proceedings and estate planning.

Adriann is a member of various professional bar associations, community organizations, and is also a member of the Chief Justice Thomas J. Moyer Inn, American Inns of Court.

Adriann is a current member of the Ohio Guardianship Association, and a former board member of the Consortium Against Adult Abuse, which facilitates the identification, prevention and treatment of abuse, neglect and exploitation of older adults through active collaboration and education.

Adriann can be reached by emailing amcgee@reminger.com or by calling 614.232.2442.
